Tre inaction of the French Authorities in - Tonquin is simply incomprehensible. The French and Chinese are brought face to face in Tonquin; both of them have sent troops into the country, while the Annamese, who claim to be the ruling race, look on and doubtless wonder which they are to acknowledge as masters of the situation. Tonquinese are probably anxious only to be out the country. It is the cumulative figures rid of Annamese maladministration and care which are startling. The action taken by the Commandant of as making indirect reference to the French, sufficient proof that he did not mind wounding French susceptibilities. A Tientsin correspondent of a Shanghai contemporary says a force of ten thousand men, bave been ordered to Annam. If this be true it would seem probable that the promise of the Chinese Commandant in Tonquin was not a mere idle boast; that, at least, there is a to drive the French out of Tonquin. The jurors were Messrs. E. Pereira, S. Marcal, B. L. Symos, J. Ledbury, A. F. de J. Scares, J. McCallum, and A.W. Quinton.

and Shanghal Bank and lives on the bank premises. The prisoner slept in the same room with him. On the afternoon of the day in question, shortly before the departure of the Canton steamor, P.S. Campbell, who was on duty on the wharf, saw a sampan hanging about in a suspicious manner, and as there had been some robberies shortly before, he thought some of the property might be on board. He therefore signalled to the officer of the steamer not to allow the people in the boat to come on board, and bailed the sampao. The prisoner and another man were in the boat, and on being esserohed the The Gorman schooner Hecht was taken on the money mentioned in the indictment was found upon the prisoner. He said his father had given him the morey, and the complainant was communicated with. The complainant then found that the money had been taken from a box in his room. It appeared the key of the box was nanally left on the bed and the prisoner had access to it. Complainant stated that the prisoner had repeatedly asked him for money with which to set up in business, but he refused to give it to him, telling him he was too young The prisoner, in making his defence, did not deny having taken the money, but said he did not steal it. He wanted to commence business. and had thought of starting a wood and coal shop, but a friend at Singapore wrote up to him that the clothes business was good there. He had often taken money from the box before to send to the country: A witness was called for the defence, who said ho was a watchman at the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank. He described how the box was kept bers wishing to play can sign their names in the in the room, and said the prisoner had told Match Book at the Pavilion. The match will him he was taking the money to buy clothing to send to Singapore, and that he would write a letter to his father, telling him all about it. His Lordship, in summing up, said this was a very painful case. In one sense it might be considered a worse offence to steal from a father steal, it. If the jury could come to the conclusion that he took it with the idea that although not object to his taking it and speculating it, they might find a verdict of not guilty. The jury, having retired, returned a verdict of not guilty by six to one. His Lordship said he thought the Sergeant de served some credit for his presence of mind in seeing what the suspicious boat was after. LABOUNY BY A SERVANT. José Silva pleaded guilty on an indictmen charging him that he, being employed as store keeper or servant to George Fenwick, did stead a gold ring, two watches, and cortain money, the property of his employer, during the month

His Lordship said the evidence was very clear against the prisoner, but he was a very young boy, and he hardly knew what to do with him. Mr. Fenwick, being asked as to the prisoner's previous character, said he was only in his employ about six weeks and he could not say any.

The Emperor and Empress have arrived. They proceeded from the railroad station direct to the Chapel of the Georgian Virgin deeply impressed with manifestations of loyalty. From the chapel their Majesties went to the palace in the Kremlin, where the Burgomaster presented an address of homage. Their Majesties then visited the Oathedral, on the way to which they were immensely cheered. They then drove to the Petrowsky Palace. The crowd in front of the Kremlin was so dense that the horses attached to the imperial carriage could only proceed at a walk.
